

B.C. May Send Free Food to World's Hungry

A plan for free distribution of British Columbia food products to the underprivileged nations of the world was announced yesterday by Premier Bennett.

The premier told a press conference the government is prepared to spend "many hundreds of thousands of dollars" on the program "over a period of time."

At the same time Mr. Bennett released a letter he sent to External Affairs Minister Green stating that B.C. will "welcome its fair share" of the close to 100 tuberculous refugee families brought to Canada as part of the world refugee year program.

This would mean about eight of the families could come to this province.

In his letter the premier at the same time reiterated the need for a larger Canadian refugee program and the need for a federal-provincial conference to study the distribution of surplus Canadian food to starvation areas of the world.

Outlining the provincial food distribution plan, Mr. Bennett said a cabinet committee will be set up immediately under the chairmanship of Health Minister Martin to work out the details and extent of the plan.

Welfare Minister Black also would be a member. Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside, former United Nations technical assistance chief, would be asked to serve.

Dr. Keenleyside now is chairman of the B.C. Power Commission.

The likely vehicle for distribution of the B.C. food would be the UN international children's emergency fund.

Mr. Bennett said that officials of UNICEF had indicated in "exploratory talks" already held that there is still a most urgent need for powdered milk and canned fish "in many parts of the world."

"These products certainly can be provided by British Columbia and indeed by the rest of Canada."

WINNIPEG (CP)—The federal government is planning to turn back more than 90,000,000 pounds of surplus pork to packing houses for sale to Canadian consumers, it was reported here.

Civil Rights Passed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed a civil rights bill Friday night after eight weeks of battling.

The measure, aimed primarily at enforcing Negro voting rights in the southern United States, now goes back to the House of Representatives for action on Senate amendments.

HOUSE HOPE

Congressional leaders were hopeful that the House, which passed substantially the same bill by a 311-to-109 vote March 24, would accept the Senate changes.

The vote was 71 to 18. The 18 opposed were the southern senators who fought the bill every step of the way.

BITTER FIGHT

Senate passage of the bill came over bitter opposition of southern members, who lost in a last-ditch effort to send it back to the Judiciary committee for more hearings. The final vote capped a struggle that began Feb. 15 and was featured by a record-smashing around-the-clock session.

Paper's Unions Beg to Differ

HAVANA (UPI)—The independent newspaper Diario de la Marina published an editorial cartoon yesterday depicting a man being rocketed to the moon with a second man exclaiming: "I envy him—going to another world."

Beneath the cartoon the newspaper's union workers added the foot-note: "This work-centre repudiates this cartoon and its alleged joke as an insidious attack against the Cuban revolution."

'Going on a Drunk'

$30,000 Stolen On an Impulse

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN

CHICAGO (UPI)—A trusted Brinks armored car driver jotted down a note saying, "I'm going out on a good drunk" and wandered off yesterday with a money bag containing $30,000.

Brinks' detectives found him two hours later, sitting quietly in a tavern near his home.

The driver, William Johnson, 57, was still sober—more or less.

He still had the $30,000, too

minus $60 he had spent on a brand new wardrobe.

Some of the money had also been invested in buying four rounds of drinks for everyone in the saloon.

"I'm a sick man," Johnson said. "I feel sick all over."

His wife, Estelle, sobbed.

"It's the first wrong thing he's done in 27 years. My husband never spent money for a good time."

Not so, Johnson told police. He admitted he had been out on the town Thursday night, and his wife had locked him out of their apartment. He hadn't felt quite up to par this morning, he added.

Chicago Brinks manager Parker Jones. "In my knowledge, nothing like it has ever occurred before."

After Johnson had been found and the money counted, Jones said with a touch of relief, "He's a very sick man. He has had problems."

Johnson helped himself while a guard and messenger were delivering cash in Chicago's Loop.

DID RIGHT

Like the trustworthy employee he had always been, Johnson locked the armored car before he left it. He left the note and his keys, uniform cap, company coat and badge, revolver, holster, belt and extra ammunition.

Jones said, "We knew where he was likely to go, so our supervisor went out there, and there he was."

The Brinks official was ready to forgive and forget. "If he is a sick man, we want to have him taken care of," Jones said. "We're thankful no more money was missing than there was."

His wondering wife said Johnson made $3,500 a year and had no need of money.

'Dangerous' to Speak

Cuban 'Betrayal' Attacked by Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower accused Cuba Friday of betrayal of the ideals of freedom and equal rights under law.

"Unfortunately, recent incidents in Cuba make it quite clear that it is dangerous for anyone there to voice opinions which do not conform with government policy," he said.

Eisenhower expressed this view in a lengthy letter to Chilean students who criticized U.S. policies during their visit to Santiago March 1.

The president reaffirmed U.S. policy of not interfering in Cuban internal affairs and added:

"It is regretted that the same cannot be said for the leaders of the Cuban government who seem to have intentionally made derogatory and most hostile statements regarding the United States government and people, designed to disrupt our traditionally amicable relations."

Churchman Charged

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Rev. Claudius Henry of the African Reformed Church and five of his followers have been arrested on suspicion of conspiring with Cuba's revolutionary government.

They were charged with treason and felony.

Shabby White Woman Gives Negroes Money

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—A shabbily-dressed white woman Friday distributed 200 ft bills—each worth $2.67—to Africans.

"Now I will sleep well tonight," she said.

The woman, who spoke with a Dutch accent, appeared in a local office where Africans are issued with new identity passbooks. A new book cost fl.

Thousands of Africans turned their passbooks in protest. Officials said Africans would have to buy new books—a bitter blow.

As astounded officials watched, the woman called for Africans who had burned their books. Dozens stepped forward. She ran out of bills but returned later with another 100.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE government is always wrong. When it jumps at the taxpayers like a big toused dog, anxious to please, someone kicks it in the jaw and someone else steps on its feet.

Not long ago the government announced that it was going to let old age pensioners go abroad as long as they liked without losing their pensions. Most of the people who had clamored for this measure remained silent, while opponents began a chorus of ill-tempered grumbling.

Then it was the vote for Indians. Did the Indians thank the government? From some of the comments, you might have thought that the government had offered them typhoid.

Of course, the Indians were scarcely to be blamed for this response. Many of the white man's previous gifts turned out to be loaded. It was natural that the Indians held this one to the ear to find out whether it ticked, and then dunked it in the pond to be double-certain.

But I think the time has come for someone to pat the government on its shaggy head and give it a word of praise for meaning well.

Letting pensioners go abroad and stay with relatives, and granting the unconditional vote to Indians, were good and kindly actions.

Furthermore, they weren't likely to grow a harvest of Tory votes. Old age pensioners who want to go abroad, and Indians living on the reserve, are both minority groups.

The pensioners who go to Britain or the U.S.A. won't be voting here. So many of the Indians are hostile about the vote, fearing to lose their rights, that the government probably lost more than it gained by the measure.

Personally, I feel that the government might have been wise to attach a plebiscite clause to the Indian vote, allowing tribes to refuse the vote en bloc if they had strong feelings about it.

In the long run, though, the granting of the vote, with no niggly restrictions attached should increase feelings of brotherhood between Indian and non-Indian.

Good for the government. They did right, even though they didn't have to.

Here's another field where they could show generosity: Immigration. Every now and then some poor soul makes headlines when he is bounced from the country and the door slammed in his face.

The government usually has good reasons for its actions. However, it doesn't confide these reasons to the deportee, who leaves Canada with a feeling of injustice.

This situation is not peculiar to Canada. Other countries treat immigrants far more harshly than we do. However, we are among the enlightened countries.

Perhaps we could set an example to the world by creating an immigration court where people could get a hearing before a judge—either in public or private—and an "accused" immigrant could be confronted with specific charges made by real people.

Entering a country is a privilege, not a right. Even on that basis, however, it would be fair to notify a would-be resident of the reasons why we don't want him—and give him an opportunity to answer back.

Up to Weather

Saskatchewan's Premier Douglas said Friday date of a provincial election will depend largely on the weather in the next few weeks.

Half Polio Cases Had Their Shots

VANCOUVER (CP)—Nearly half of B.C.'s polio victims this year had received one or more injections of Salk vaccine but the provincial health department's confidence in the vaccine is unshaken, a spokesman said Friday.

TWO FATAL

Thirty-two cases of polio, 21 of them from the Burns Lake area, have been reported. Two, from Burns Lake, have been fatal.

Of the 32 cases, 10 had received a complete series of three Salk shots. Three had two shots and two had one shot.

TWO SERIES

Ten Burns Lake cases had complete shots and three had partial protection. One man had received two complete series of shots—in 1955 and 1959.

Last year, B.C.'s worst polio year since the vaccine was introduced in 1955, there were 129 cases and 14 deaths.

OTTAWA (CP)—Polio has shown an increase over a year ago, a health department official said Friday.

Dr. E. W. R. Best reported 61 cases from Jan. 1 to March 26, compared to 20 cases during the same period in 1959.

This year's cases are most numerous in British Columbia, where 27 have been reported.

Disarmament Talks Bogged Until Summit

GENEVA (AP)—The 10-nation disarmament conference abandoned all serious hope Friday of coming up with any meaningful agreement before next month's summit meeting in Paris.

Western officials said they are convinced Soviet deputy foreign minister Valerian Zorin came to the conference with instructions to keep the negotiations locked in a stalemate until the summit. This would give Nikita Khrushchev hope of reaping a double harvest.

In return for possible Western concessions in other fields, and in a guise of Russian sacrifices for the sake of world peace, the Soviet premier might instruct Zorin to take a more flexible line when the conference resumes after the summit.

SAME OLD SALAD

The West was ready to follow the Khrushchev line until Friday when Zorin explained what he meant by general principles: total abandonment of military establishments and weapons without any clear provisions for verification. The general principles were indistinguishable from the Khrushchev plan.

"The same old salad with more Russian dressing," quipped French delegate Jules Moch.

Heart Attack Kills Stan Taylor; Funeral Services Set Tuesday

Stanley Walter Taylor, 63, B.C.'s registrar of companies, died Thursday after being stricken with a heart attack while attending a convention of the Canadian Co-operative Association at Banff, Alta.

He died in Calgary where he had been taken for treatment.

Funeral services will be at McCall Bros. funeral home at 2 p.m. Tuesday, with burial at Royal Oak.

Mr. Taylor, one of B.C.'s best-known civil servants, until recently had also served as superintendent of real estate and insurance.

He leaves his widow, Marjorie, and one daughter, Mrs. John (Doreen) Coppinger.

Mr. Taylor had been in the government service for 15 years, having been appointed in 1945 following his discharge from the RCAF in which he served with the rank of squadron leader.

He saw service in the First World War, serving as a lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps. He was widely known in service circles and among professional groups in the province. He was a member of the Bar of British Columbia.

Funeral Held Here For Major Trump

Funeral services were held yesterday for Maj. Ernest Trump, assistant adjutant-general at Ottawa during the First World War, who died Wednesday in Veterans Hospital. He was 71.

He was born in Bristol, England, and had resided in Victoria for the past 13 years. He also served in Russia during his military career.

Surviving are the widow, Lillian, 1266 Newport; one son, Peter C. Trump, Vancouver; four daughters, Mrs. David Playfair, St. Catharines, Ont., Mrs. R. A. Albury, Nassau, Bahamas, Mrs. John Nesbitt, Ottawa, and Mrs. John Borland, Toronto; 12 grandchildren, and one brother, Capt. Leonard Trump, Victoria.

Shadrach's Wanderings Show Pass-Law Power

By KEN MacTIGGART
JOHANNESBURG (Special)

Four years ago I met Shadrach, a houseboy for a family here. He was about 40, a big, amiable person, whose employer considered him invaluable as cleaner, handyman and baby-sitter.

Recently I met him again with a new employer. What the latter told me perhaps explains why pass laws terrify natives and earn their hatred.

TO EXPLAIN
When his former employer had to let him go, his present employer promptly put in a bid for him. So Shadrach went to the employment office, as required immediately when employment ends, and tried to explain. He was told he had to take work on a farm because no houseboy jobs were open.

Without waiting for the 72-hour between-job record to be entered in his passbook, he fled illegally to his prospective employer, who found Shadrach was registered as from a distant town and only there and in person could any employment change be approved.

TO THE OFFICE
The employer advanced his fare and Shadrach made the 200-mile rail trip. The distant office had no record of him, so he returned, moving at large illegally.

The new employer went again to the employment office, where they explained Shadrach maintained his mother in a Johannesburg native location, out of his $27-a-month pay.

TO A FARM
Officialdom was obdurate. Shadrach had to get approval from the office at his birthplace. Furthermore, if houseboy jobs were not open at that office, he would go to a farm.

So his benefactor once again paid his fare and then telephoned the distant office and put in a request for Shadrach.

Weeks passed, then a little black button of an old woman, his mother, came to his prospective employer. Shadrach was in jail in Johannesburg.

TO THE JAIL
The employer raced to the employment office. No one knew anything there. He went to the jail. No one knew Shadrach. Two days later he found Shadrach in court. He was charged with not having a properly-endorsed passbook.

The benefactor got him released and took him to the employment office, where "I had a violent fight with

Control for Black Majority? Never, Says Africa Leader

Grievances Denied, Emergency Ending

LONDON (Reuters) — External Affairs Minister Eric Louw of South Africa said Friday night his government will not change its racial segregation policy or ever "hand over control . . . to the black majority."

Africans have "no grievances" in the race-troubled country and the emergency there is nearly over, Louw said.

No Basic Change

The riots and other disturbances in South Africa will not lead to a basic change in policy, Louw said.

Asked if the ruling Nationalist party would not have to come to terms with the majority—whites are outnumbered three to one—Louw replied:

"Yes, we are developing the native areas and gradually increasing their powers to full internal self-government."

Asked about the main Negro grievances in urban areas, he said:

"He has no grievances. He had some in the past, over housing and so on, but these are being overcome."

Louw said the Negro was told he had a grievance—"during the riots the bulk of the natives were intimidated by gangster organizations."

The emergency was nearly over, he said. "Everything is calm. There may be incidents but the main trouble is over."

Stalemate Broken

UNEXPECTEDLY, when it looked as if none of the disputants would budge an inch, the impasse at the Geneva conference on the law of the sea appears to have been broken. A willingness to compromise on fishing rights has suddenly emerged from the hitherto adamant attitudes adopted by the nations chiefly affected, and while the agreement tentatively reached requires ratification by formal vote next week, the probability is that it will win approval.

The discussion had developed into a contest in which Canada was opposed by the United Kingdom and the United States in alliance. Canada, accused at one time of hamstringing the conference by its inflexibility, stood out for the now well-known six-plus-six formula for fishing rights. The U.S. and U.K., both extensive fishers in the outer six-mile strips of other nations, insisted that the right to do so should be preserved under a qualifying clause which would have granted to nations which "traditionally and historically" had fished along foreign shores perpetual right of entry thereto. For Canada this would have meant virtual nullification of the protection for which it was striving.

To reach an amicable settlement both Canada on the one hand and the U.S.-U.K. on the other had to give ground. The compromise consists of agreement to the six-plus-six formula propounded by Canada, but with the proviso that for 10 years instead of forever those nations which had done so for the past five years would be permitted to fish between the six and 12-mile limits of other nations. This means that Canada will get everything it sought, but 10 years hence instead of immediately. It is a fair and reasonable delay in view of the serious economic effect sudden exclusion from grounds now freely fished would have on fishing fleets of the U.K. and U.S.

The compromise solution has been described as a diplomatic feat, and adding to pleasure over the result is the fact that the nations chiefly affected all appear happy with it. If the same amity and the same willingness of disputants to meet one another half way were manifested at the disarmament conference the world would have cause to rejoice.

'The Navy's Here'

WHEN during the war the German prison-ship Altmarm was intercepted by the RN the cry that resounded below decks among the sailors held in bondage was "the Navy's here!" In a different vein this sentiment might be echoed by Victorians with respect to the RCN. For the navy is also here, and a comforting assurance that is for the life of this area. A reminder of its economic value alone was given by Rear-Admiral Rayner in a talk this week on the RCN's 50th anniversary and its role in the defensive guard of the nation. Its ships and sailors are a vital factor in the prosperity of the district.

The navy in fact is Greater Victoria's biggest industry. Between uniformed and civilian personnel it comprises some 17 per cent of the total population. With a payroll of $2,500,000 a month and an annual outlay—including wages, supplies and services of $38,000,000—it butresses the economic needs of the area. Nor does this figure include ship and shore construction or the complementary work of shipyards on naval vessels.

It can easily be seen therefore how important the RCN is to Victoria, and how disastrous it would be to the well-being of the whole community were there no Pacific Command here. In another and equally important sense, of course, the RCN belongs to this area. Its personnel and their families are an integral part of the general life of the community, respected as a group and bearing their share of the common local responsibilities.

Since men in blue have been at Esquimalt for a hundred years the cry that "the Navy's here" is stronger than an echo; it is a standing reality. This is merely all the more reassuring as this area takes pride in its naval citizens and realizes that it cannot do without them.

Markets in United Kingdom

A large and profitable market for Canadian products exists in Great Britain but Canadian manufacturers seem unaware of it. Mr. B. C. Butler, Canadian trade representative in the United Kingdom, asserted in London this week, according to a Canadian Press dispatch from London. Mr. Butler said not enough interest had been taken in this market by manufacturers who could profit by the development of such connections overseas. If those are the facts, will the trade department itself lead the way towards an easy remedy?

Not much has been made public in Canada on the surveys and findings of trade commissioners overseas. It is true that the information is on file and no doubt accessible on application to the department concerned and that trade commissioners at times tour Canada giving a digest of their experiences abroad. There, however, the effort from Ottawa appears to end. There is too little practical use made of the trade information so gathered.

If Mr. Butler is correct, and he should be in a position to know, the department at Ottawa should examine the matter and devise some more active means of spreading word of these trading opportunities, not only in the British market but generally throughout the range of overseas trading areas. It can scarcely be contended that Canadian manufacturers as a whole would likely be indifferent to reliable advice pointing out where new trade channels may be opened.

Though Mr. Butler surmised that lack of interest amounting to apathy in this country might be due in part to some psychological factors, such as unawareness of the different overseas markets and the opportunities, it is more probable that the circulation of federal trade reports has been too limited and occasional to make a combined impression on the manufacturers of the country. Canadian trade information is reliable and efficient; why is not more use made of it when it has been gathered?

Interpreting the News

Moderation Welcomed

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED STATES and Canadian diplomats welcome the West German decision to re-study and perhaps delay acceptance of plans to speed up economic integration of Europe's six country Common Market.

The Common Market, led by West Germany and France, has been favored by the U.S. as against the loosely-knit seven-country European Free Trade Association led by Britain.

But U.S. enthusiasm for a speed-up in Common Market integration, with lowering of tariffs inside the alliance and raising of some tariffs against non-members, may have been reduced by the strong warnings of Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan, coupled by expressions of fear by Canadian spokesmen.

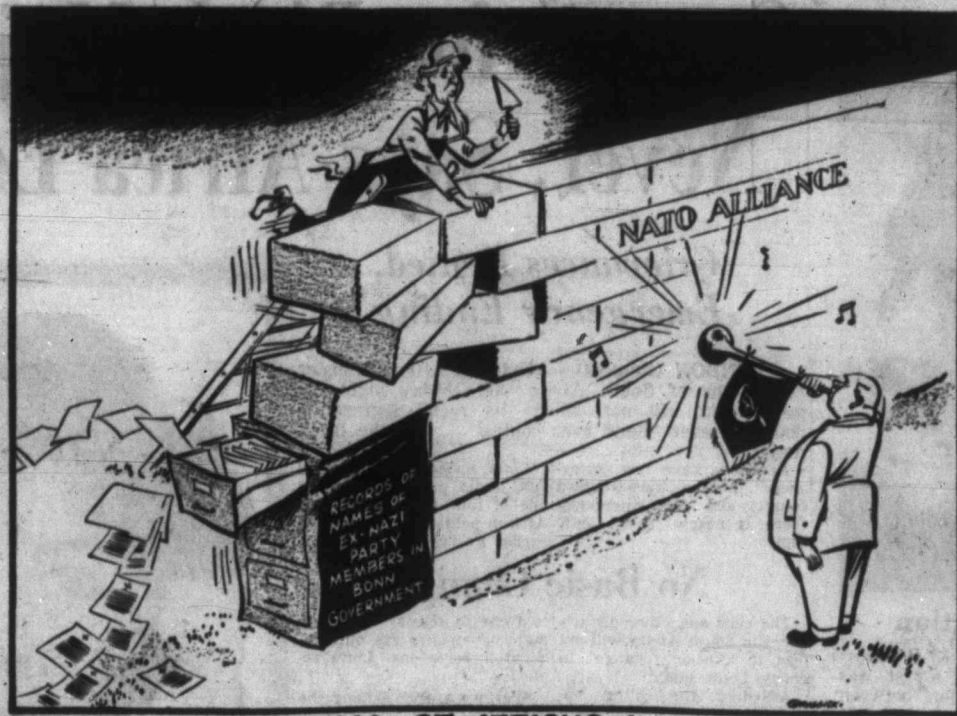

The Common Market planned to move up by 18 months proposals for a 20 per cent tariff cut for its member countries so that they would go into effect by next July 1. At the same time beginnings of a common external tariff would emerge. A close look at these plans gave some Canadian officials the impression Canada's market advantages in the Benelux countries and West Germany would be pared.

Britain was more concerned because of her heavier dependence on European markets. When Macmillan came last month to work out a joint nuclear test ban policy with President Eisenhower, there were reports he also left a strong impression with State Secretary Herter that Britain might be forced eventually to lead a peripheral attack against any German-French economic alliance that tended to separate the heart from the perimeter of Europe.

While some controversy developed as to what Macmillan actually said, it is well established that U.S. diplomats were surprised and a bit shocked by the nature of Macmillan's statements.

Earlier, Eisenhower, in meeting with German Chancellor Adenauer, had endorsed the idea behind a Common Market speed-up, but apparently after Macmillan's statement, there were second thoughts in the U.S. state department.

WALL OF JERICO /

Rigor Americanus

Ludicrous Stalemate

By CASSANDRA, from London

ONCE every four years the American political system goes into a trance—a form of political epilepsy that takes place as the presidential election approaches.

This state of rigor lasts as long as nine months and, for that very considerable period, it is almost impossible to get any real sense or definite commitment out of the professional U.S. politicians. The reason is simple.

They have their eye on votes, and national patriotism preferably tinged with local bombast are permissible.

This atmosphere was most noticeable in Washington the other day when Mr. Christian Herter's State Department let it be known that no agreement with Russia could be arrived at on the H-bomb question unless definite physical proof of their actions could be obtained.

"Any ban," said Mr. Herter, "which does not include adequate inspection to prevent cheating would be a violation of United States policy."

Thus a position has been reached in which America would not trust the Soviet Union one millimetre further than it could see or detect.

Fortunately this ludicrous and dangerous stalemate seems to have been broken, and one can only wish Mr. Macmillan and his advisers the best of luck in getting rid of part of the White House quadrennial paralysis.

Music In The Air

NEWS comes that night-flights by the Comet 4B jet aircraft are now to be permitted out of London Airport. So the luckless inhabitants who live in the take-off paths of these flying blow-lamps will have their nights made unendurable as well as their days.

It can only be a short time before the huge Boeing jets, too, will be permitted to make the skies hideous with their nocturnal racket.

What consolation have I to offer the luckless citizens who live near this awful hell? It is a wry one. The information reaches me that Austrian Airlines have just bought four new Vickers-Viscounts which, with great respect to Sir George Edwards, their designer, scream like wounded horses when they take off.

Austrian Airlines have christened their new prop-jets after famous music composers.

Names? Haydn, Schubert, Strauss and Bruckner.

Unsweet Union

THESE are restless times of dissent. So I report one piece of unanimity — nation-wide condemnation of the design and the size of the new one-pound notes. When these distinguished little tickets got into circulation on a big scale for the first time, I heard nothing but disapproval.

The portrait of the Queen is pedestrian, the general layout is unattractive, the placing of the serial numbers a mistake, the disappearance of the pound-sign a pity and the "I Promise to pay the Bearer on Demand the sum of One Pound" a lie.

Sinister Sign

NO other country in the world has pub-signs like ours. They unmistakably herald the good news that there may be a drink in sight. Now I tell you of a sinister and thoroughly reprehensible practice that has started.

One of the largest petrol firms has taken to erecting what appear to be pub-signs but are, in fact, petrol-signs outside their garages. That is bad enough, but I have just seen a photograph of what looks like a pub-sign, but turns out to be a sign for a library in Penze.

Things are getting to a pretty pass when you are not sure whether you will get your windshield wiped or have a good book thrust at you when all you need is a pint.

Gerald Waring

Reports from Ottawa

IT'S ironical that the government of John Diefenbaker has approved plans for substantial gas exports to the United States by a company that Diefenbaker described four years ago as "Texas buccaners."

Almost makes you wonder if Clint W. Murchison and his Texan associates, the men who supplied much of the imagination and some of the money for the great Trans-Canada Pipe Line project, were the oil and gas pirates that the office-hungry Conservatives made them out to be.

These men were out to make money, of course—but that's not an evil intent except perhaps in socialist books. If the lure of the buck had not enticed them to Canada, with their vision and their know-how, we might not be on the verge of exporting huge volumes of gas to the U.S. and thereby opening a new era of industrial development in this country.

More grievous still, we might not even have a Diefenbaker government. And on this point I quote one of these very Texans, who arrived in town a few weeks ago to sit in on the National Energy Board hearings on gas exports. He had no hotel reservation, but he didn't seem to share his friends' anxiety on this score.

"I can always stay with Diefenbaker," he grinned. "After all, I helped elect him, didn't I?"

There is poetic justice in the way the wheel has made a full turn, with the government unintentionally and unwittingly paying an unrecognized political debt by approving Trans-Canada Pipe Lines' proposal to export gas to the U.S.

Certainly there is unquestionable common sense in the government's decision. More than 1,100 western gas wells have been capped and idle, many of them for years, because of lack of markets. On the other hand, American gas producers have proved pretty conclusively that they cannot keep pace with rapidly increasing U.S. gas consumption. And we badly need more U.S. dollars to cut down our $1,450,000,000 trade deficit with the U.S.

But the U.S. $75,000,000 a year that will come to Canada as a result of the exports just authorized, is only part, and probably the smaller part, of the benefits that will ultimately accrue.

Beginning immediately, some $200,000,000 will be invested in construction of new transmission pipe lines, followed by about $300,000,000 to be invested in additional field development and gas processing facilities. This money, for labor and materials, spells new jobs in an economy that, while prosperous, has not been able to provide jobs for everyone who wants to work.

But the big boom will then be only starting. The clean, dry gas required for fuel is obtained by stripping raw gas of sulphur and hydrocarbon byproducts. These byproducts form the raw materials for petrochemical plants. The prospective large scale export of fuel gas will open the way to the further large development of the petrochemical industry in western Canada.

Moreover, it would be naive to assume that the newly authorized exports, comprising about two-thirds of Canada's present surplus established reserves, will be all the Americans will want, or all we will want to sell them. Present gas discovery rates indicate that by 1986, and after making provision for much greater domestic consumption by then, an additional 40 trillion cubic feet of gas surplus to Canadian needs will have been found. This is more than six times as much gas as the government has now approved for export. The United States is the obvious market for it.

Management of the Wilds

By GREGORY CLARK

THE catch-as-catch can principle that has more or less dominated the life of a trapper is coming to an end in Canada.

And over the country the "registered" trapline idea is developing. By this system the crown lands, which are controlled by the governments, are surveyed into areas a single man can trap with some hope of making his effort worth while. The character of the area, the present and possible future population of it, the ease, with which it can be covered by one man, are taken into account. And these areas are awarded and registered in the name of the trapper. The trapline becomes, in effect, his own fur farm, and nobody can poach or intrude.

Longer School Hours

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

SCHOOL children in Manitoba currently spend an average of 27½ hours a week in classes. Is this really long enough to do justice to the work which should be covered in a school year? The Winnipeg school board thinks not; it would like to add an extra hour to each day of schooling — at least for secondary students.

The case for longer school hours has been gaining strength in recent years. Educationists say that there is not enough time to fit into the curriculum all of the things which are desirable or needed for education today. The so-called "core subjects" are constantly under pressure from demands for other courses.

It may be argued, of course, that quality of education is more important than quantity, that the problem is how to make proper use of the time already available. But this ignores the real need for new subjects, and it is doubtful whether greater efficiency alone would make up the equivalent of five extra hours of schooling a week.

To be sure, the extra hour each day could do more harm than good if it was wasted in uninspiring courses, or if the present curriculum was spread out over a longer period. That, however, stresses the need for the efficiency which should be expected of school administrators at all times; it cannot be accepted as an excuse for refusing the extra time.

Washington Angle

Symbol of Leadership

By MARQUIS CHILDS

SEEING Adlai Stevenson at the centre of a glittering government reception in the course of his Latin-American tour, surrounded by those eager to talk with him, one of his travelling companions later asked him if he had any formula for solving the kind of social dilemma that frequently entraps the visiting lion.

What do you do when you are caught by two or three persistent bores and the conversation runs thin? Yes, said the resourceful Stevenson, he did have an answer. You tell them you are interested in such-and-such a problem and ask if there is anyone in the room who can give you information on it. With this they must in all courtesy lead you away to someone else.

As in every part of the world he has visited since 1952, Stevenson was received on his 12-nation Latin-American tour not only with courtesy and elaborate official protocol but with remarkable interest and curiosity. Twice defeated for the presidency, holding no public office for nearly eight years, he has nevertheless remained a symbol of what American leadership can mean in intellect, idealism and courage.

It is because he has continued to symbolize these same qualities for millions of Americans that, despite all his disclaimers, he must still be considered a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president. Little or no Stevenson organization exists today—certainly none with his sanction. But even the old pros in the party, who are mostly in opposition to him, agree that by a kind of spontaneous combustion organization would quickly come into being if he were to emerge anew as a likely compromise choice of the convention in Los Angeles.

For this reason the speeches he is to make in the weeks ahead hold more than ordinary interest. The first is on April 12, Founders Day at the University of Virginia. Given the setting Stevenson's admirers are looking for a literary-political triumph that will spark a new flame.

Ten days later he addresses the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington and a month after that he is the speaker at the centennial observance of Northwestern University's law school. Of the requests to speak that pour in to his office in Chicago he accepts perhaps one out of a hundred.

If Stevenson were to be nominated for a third time he would be the second man in history to receive this uncertain honor from a major party. The two-time loser bogey is the one most often raised by the professional politicians opposing him.

The thought of Adlai Stevenson following in the footsteps of Williams Jennings Bryan whom the Democrats chose to make a third and vain try for the presidency has come overtones. The two could hardly be more opposite. Bryan was impassioned, forceful, solemn, puritanical, forbidding, rustic, declamatory even in small gatherings. Stevenson is urbane, humorous, fun-loving, modest, friendly, sophisticated, witty, understated even in his public addresses.

Last summer one of his friends and business associates, William Benton, chartered a 100-foot yacht to take a party of friends cruising for six weeks in the western Mediterranean. While the company changed from port to port Stevenson was aboard for most of the cruise, enjoying himself hugely. Toward the end he regaled a dinner party by putting on a side-splitting imitation of Benton and no one laughed harder than the host.

It is characteristic of Stevenson that instead of returning to this country when his Latin-American trip ended in Caracas, Venezuela, he chose to steal five days of relaxation with his old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Tree of London and New York, at their beautiful place in the Barbados.

One of the complaints of the pros is that they cannot work with Stevenson. He simply does not talk their language. And, as two campaigns have demonstrated, he is much more interested in the company of witty and charming women than in Carmine DeSapio or Harry Truman.

After a big rally in Madison Square Garden, when a close huddle with the old warriors was called for, Stevenson would be enjoying himself with congenial friends in Mrs. Albert Lasker's drawing room.

He has changed surprisingly little in the 12 years since he was, to his own great surprise, elected governor of Illinois by a majority of nearly half a million. Beneath the urbane surface he is the same serious thinker profoundly concerned for the future of mankind in a world of nuclear armaments.

Letters to the Editor

For Refugees

As chairman of the Victoria Committee for the World Refugee Year I should like to clear up some misunderstandings about the plans for help to refugees. The aims of our committee are as follows:

(1) To focus attention on the plight of refugees.
(2) With this publicity, to help voluntary agencies already engaged in refugee work to raise more money than would normally be likely.

(3) To collect money for the United Nations high commissioner for refugees' special fund (which is to be used to help settle 15,000 refugees who have now been in the camps for more than 10 years).

All money collected by the Victoria committee will go to the UN high commissioner to help with this camp clearance program. Most of these refugees will prefer to settle in the countries in which they now are, especially as their children will have been going to local schools and will know the local language.

Our committee has no connection with the program under which Canada is taking tubercular refugees although of course we approve of it. Our sole purpose is to give individuals and groups in Victoria a chance to share in this worldwide humanitarian effort in which the peoples of 68 countries are already working. So far Canada has done less than a number of other comparable countries such as Sweden, Norway or Holland.

The Department of Citizenship and Immigration has a booklet indicating how individuals or groups can participate in bringing particular refugee families to Canada. That program, however, is handled directly by the department and our committee is not directly involved.

H. L. KEENEYSIDE, Chairman.

Wildlife Threatened

The efforts of the entomologists and forest biologists to produce a spray which will control harmful insects are very worth while, and the article in the April 7 Colonist with reference to the Ambrosia beetle was interesting.

In a paper recently published by the forest biology laboratory in Victoria, giving an account of the spraying of 156,000 acres of up-land forest in the summer of 1957 with DDT to control the black-headed budworm, it is reported that although every care was taken to avoid rivers and lakes, the mortality of the coho fry, trout and young steelheads ranged from zero to almost complete annihilation. Also that the aquatic insects suffered in like measure, with the result that the productivity of these waters may not return to adequate for several years.

In neither of these reports was any mention made of the effects of the spraying on the wild life in general—the breeding ducks, the small birds and the beneficial insects. The fish, we know, are important. Fish mean tourists and tourists mean money, but the birds and wild life of the forests are also very important. The end result of this spraying may be disastrous.

LEWIS DUNCAN

Judge's Opponent Shoots Himself

TORONTO (CP)—Lewis Duncan, veteran Toronto lawyer who was convicted of contempt of court in the Supreme Court of Canada two years ago, was found shot to death Friday. Police said it was a suicide.

The 74-year-old Queen's counsel, first lawyer to be cited for contempt of Canada's top court, was found dead in a basement washroom of a large downtown department store.

NOTE FOUND
Police said they found a note. A new .45 calibre automatic lay beside the body, the store receipt still attached.

The lawyer, more than 40 years at the bar, was fined $2,000 by the high court in December, 1957, after he had moved that Mr. Justice Charles Locke be excluded from a panel of five judges about to hear a will case which Mr. Duncan was arguing.

He had claimed that justice would not be served if the B.C. jurist sat on the case.

Mr. Duncan gave no reason

Ottawa Roundup

Divorce 'Fixed'—MP

OTTAWA—Harold Winch of the CCF surprised the Commons Friday by indicating that one of the parties in a divorce case now before Parliament is prepared to swear the evidence was obtained by collusion.

The Vancouver East MP asked chairman Charles Rea (PC, Toronto Spadina) the procedure that should be followed where one of the parties is willing to swear the evidence of adultery, only ground for divorce recognized by Parliament, was arranged.

Later, Mr. Winch declined to name the person to whom he referred.

Mr. Rea said he has no authority to rule on procedure.

The incident occurred as CCF members again blocked passage of divorce bills in a campaign to have Parliament relieved of granting Quebec and Newfoundland divorces. It was the second straight week that not one bill of 263 was passed.

Mr. Winch also said the government appears determined to avoid saving money in unifying certain branches of the armed forces.

For example, number of chaplains now totals 273—the same as before unification of the three chaplain corps.

The federal government's forecast budget surplus of $12,000,000 for 1960-61 took another rhetorical beating from Liberal MPs.

But an overwhelming vote of 184 to 7 beat a CCF non-confidence motion that called for elimination of wasteful defence spending, a capital gains tax and a self-liquidating public investment program.

No defence white paper will be issued at this session of parliament, Defence Minister Peckham said.

The government still intends to submit its proposed bill of rights to a parliamentary committee, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said.

Jean Noel Tremblay (PC, Roberval) called for tighter government control of the CBC to end the "climate of immorality" it has produced and the "incompetence" in its administration.

Canada and the U.S. are negotiating a research and production sharing agreement on the Avrocar, the "flying saucer" aircraft built at Malton, Ont., Defence Production Minister O'Hurley said.

The Commons external affairs committee agreed it should be given an opportunity to question External Affairs Minister Green on his return at the end of May from an extended trip abroad.

No Letters On Friday

Postal service in the Greater Victoria area for Good Friday and Easter Monday was announced last night.

Good Friday—No letter carrier or rural deliveries; wicket service at the post office from 10 a.m. to noon; normal holiday procedure will be in effect for special delivery and mail receipts and despatches; collections will be made in the evening only.

Easter Monday—One letter carrier delivery; wicket service and money order and savings bank, 8 a.m. to noon; normal holiday service for special delivery and mail receipts and despatches; normal street collections.

Damage to Thruway Split Among Culprits

VANCOUVER (CP)—The provincial highways department is demanding $29,400 from each of 47 motorists convicted of crossing a grass median strip down the centre of the Deas Island thruway south of here.

The department arrived at the figure by dividing the amount of damage it estimates has been done to the strip—$1,332.50—by the number of motorists convicted.

Truants Fly Low

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI)—Two 15-year-old boys who played hookey from high school here yesterday almost dropped in on their classmates once—in a "borrowed" plane.

Philip Lerza and James Lewis made the school one of their "near-stops" as they buzzed several San Francisco Bay area communities in a two-hour flight, police said.

The youngsters found a four-place Cessna 172 fueled up and with the key in the ignition at Palo Alto airport.

Lerza had 10 hours of flying time and had never soloed, but made a perfect landing as gas ran out.

In planting alpenes, don't just bung them all in the same way, but read up on each one to find out something about its natural habitat and try to make it feel at home.
Add leafmould to the soil pockets

Did you ever notice how difficult it is to keep grass from growing in a gravel driveway? Ever since I first thought about this, I have favored lots of stones and gravel in the lawn site and I think it is bad business to sift them all out. Finely-powdered soil without any stones will pack down into an impenetrable crust after the first rain.

Sinatra Surrenders

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Frank Sinatra yielded to pressure Friday and fired Albert Maltz, one of Hollywood's blacklisted writers, whom he had hired to write the screen play for the film "The Execution of Private Slovik."

The hiring of Maltz brought a storm of protest from many in the movie industry, veterans' groups and others.

NO ANSWERS

Maltz and nine others went to jail in 1947 when they refused to answer questions before a Congressional committee on alleged Communist leanings.

Sinatra at first defended his choice of Maltz as a writer of the story of the only American executed as a deserter during the Second World War.

SETTLEMENT

But Friday night he issued this statement:

"In view of the reaction of my family, my friends, and the American public, I have instructed my attorneys to make a settlement with Albert Maltz and to inform him that he will not write the screen play for 'The Execution of Private Slovik.'"

HAD THOUGHT

Sinatra added: "I had thought the major consideration was whether the resulting script would be in the best interests of the United States."

"But the American public has indicated it feels the morality of hiring Albert Maltz is the more crucial matter and I will accept this majority opinion."

There was no comment from Maltz. He is believed to be in Europe.

Free 'Criminal' Forgot Mother

HALIFAX (CP)—A free man again, John Allan Morrison left Sydney so fast Thursday night he didn't take time to bid his anxious mother goodbye.

But the first thing he did when he got off the train here, 10 hours later, was to phone her and tell her "everything is okay."

Stocky 33-year-old Morrison was issued a warrant to serve six months in Sydney county jail for a 14-year-old conviction of owning a liquor still.

He said he left his Cape Breton home town of Sydney Forks nine months after he was released without bail or parole and heard nothing of the case until last week, when he was yanked by RCMP from his job in Hamilton.

A wildfire spread of protest brought action from the national parole board and Morrison was released late Thursday.

Another warrant under the provincial act held him nearly an hour after the decision to excuse the federal Excise Act conviction. It was also withdrawn.

Compromise Settles Film Strike

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The 32-day actors' strike against seven major movie studios was settled yesterday in a compromise which failed to win for the actors payment for post-1948 films sold to television. But in lieu of such "residual" payments, the actors did receive a $2,250,000 lump settlement for their pension fund, and an agreement to pay actors in connection with films sold to television beginning this year.

Fairclough Refuses to Give Case Against Irina Rebrin

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration Minister Fairclough declined Friday to make public the government's reasons for deporting Irina Rebrin, UBC Russian teacher.

A request that she do so came in the Commons from H. W. Herridge (C.P., Kootenay West), who said the lecturer now has expressed doubt any other country will accept her "with this stigma over me."

Mrs. Fairclough said she had given a full statement Thursday, when she said she was satisfied on security grounds the government shouldn't change its decision.

Church Hall Cornerstone Unveiled Sunday

Cornerstone of the new Edward F. Church hall in the Cadboro Bay area will be unveiled Sunday at 11:30 a.m. in special ceremonies.

The recently-completed hall was dedicated last weekend, and is now serving as a combined church, Sunday school and community centre while parishioners await construction of the new church.

Included in the contents of the box are a history of the church, minutes of meetings which led to its formation and the formation of the Sunday school, a calendar of church groups, a picture of a model of the proposed new church; a list of the present political leaders of Canada and copies of the United Church Observer and Victoria newspapers.

Three special choir presentations are scheduled Sunday in Greater Victoria churches.

At 4 p.m., the choir of Emmanuel Baptist Church will present "The Crucifixion" by St. John Stainer, with Robert and Alan Hubbard as guest soloists and Henry Pluym at the organ. Mrs. Isabelle Goodwin will conduct.

Two cantatas are scheduled Sunday night.

"The Seven Last Words" will be presented by the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Soloists will be Kathleen Paulin, soprano; William Patterson, tenor; and John Bray, bass. Cyril C. Warren will direct.

At First Baptist Church, the choir presentation will be "Olivet to Calvary."

Noonday services will be held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday between 12:15 and 12:40 p.m. at Christ Church Cathedral this week with Rt. Rev. Ralph S. Dean, Bishop of Cariboo, officiating.

Afternoon branch of the St. John's Anglican Church Women's Auxiliary will meet Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the lower hall.

The hospital tea and Dorcas shower is scheduled May 3.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Most Christians are fakes. They want their Christianity sugar-coated, spineless, and sweet. They turn their back on the hard command of Jesus, "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, take up his cross daily and follow me."

A man and woman wanted their child baptized. "Are you members of the Christian Church?" I inquired. "No," I don't want any responsibility, the mother replied.

She was willing, however, to take the baptismal vow promising to "instruct the child in the truths and duties of the Christian faith and by prayer, precept, and example, bring the child up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." So they were willing to be liars and cheats!

That incongruous hymn, "The Old Rugged Cross," is frequently sung at funerals. It is usually blasphemous when chosen by people who have never sacrificed for Christ, rarely attended church, and in every relationship have shirked their obligations and disciplines.

To be a Christian one need not wear a hair shirt like the medieval ascetics. The followers of St. Francis of Assisi were better studied with iron points to keep them from falling asleep at their long prayers.

Every Christian," said Pascal, Plummer laid down three conditions of discipleship, "self-denial, bearing one's cross, and obedience."

A great classical scholar who had never read the Gospel of Mark was asked by a friend to read it in the original Greek. "The thing that struck me most was its violence," he reported. Such phrases as "if your right hand offend you, cut it off," "if your eye offend you, pluck it out," "sell all you have," "deny yourself," "take up your cross," astonished him.

It is not easy and cheap to be a real Christian. As Jesus said, "Straight is the gate and narrow is the way that leads into life and few there be that find it."

So say all the great Christians. "It is one of the greatest principles of Christianity that what happened in Jesus Christ must happen in the soul of Francis himself wore a garment of pig's skin with the bristles inside. He sprinkled ashes on his head lest he enjoy it.

Nevertheless the Christian must make sacrifice. "The Cross is laid on every Christian," said that modern martyr, Dietrich Bonhoeffer, murdered by Hitler. He warned against "cheap grace," without discipleship, without the cross, without any cost of following Christ. True grace, costs a man his life.

The Important Aspects of Buying Children's Shoes

One doesn't just buy shoes for children—wise parents insist that their children be expertly fitted, carefully sized with shoes that will let young feet grow firm, straight and strong. This is the only proper and intelligent way to shop for children's shoes. That's why parents who demand the greatest care of their children's feet come to EATON'S for fittings. Experts in children's shoes take great care to make sure the shoes fit perfectly, and you'll notice how, after the shoes are chosen, they always have a second opinion on the fit of each pair of children's shoes sold. We, as well as you, must be satisfied that those new shoes fit properly.

Cabinet To Move

Premier Bennett said yesterday out-of-town cabinet meetings will start in May with the first ones at the North Shore in Vancouver and at Port Alberni.

He said the cabinet hopes to hold a meeting at Ganong on Salt Spring Island later in the summer.

The premier will leave Thursday to spend Easter weekend at Kelowna.

Premier Bennett Regrets

Premier Bennett said yesterday he regrets he is unable to attend the May 6 wedding of Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones, because he is still under doctor's orders to take things easy.

The premier was asked earlier if he would be able to attend. Yesterday the premier noted that the big pictures of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip which hang in his office were taken by Mr. Armstrong-Jones.

No Ravaging Pack

Controversy was still raging in Oak Bay last night over four Alsatian dogs who killed a small dachshund in a yard early Wednesday.

Some neighbors of the owners of the dogs, Cmdr. and Mrs. D. L. Macknight, 1008 Deal Street, sprang to their defence. The Macknights themselves said they would prefer to let the whole matter die down, but were unable to yesterday in the face of several anonymous telephone calls telling them to get rid of the dogs.

The Alsatians escaped from the yard Wednesday and killed a dachshund owned by Peter Henderson, 1059 Deal Street. Mr. Henderson immediately went to the police, demanding that the dogs be taken to the country "before they begin attacking small children."

Chief Robert Smith of Oak Bay Police said the matter will be brought up at the meeting of the police commission Wednesday. He admitted that "there is always a possibility that a dog which has tasted blood will attack again . . . and could associate the (Henderson) children with the dachshund."

However, some neighbors last night termed this "ridiculous" and had nothing but praise for the four large dogs and for the training and care they have received from the Macknights.

"Those dogs are wonderfully cared for and trained," said Mrs. N. E. Impett, 1015 Deal, who lives across the street from the Macknights and whose 10-year-old son, Peter, walks the dogs on a leash every day.

"This thing has been blown up out of all proportion. People are under the impression we have a pack of dogs running loose out here and it's wrong. These are show dogs, always kept either indoors or in the yard. They got out once and killed a small dog which is never kept close to home and which has had a habit of standing next to the fence and barking at the Alsatians unceasingly."

William Hooson, 1039 Deal Street, backed him up. "This is an unwarranted attack," he said. "It was unfortunate that the dog was killed, but I refuse to believe those dogs would attack anyone. To hint that they might attack children is ridiculous. I've got two small children myself and I would never hesitate to put them in a yard to play with those dogs."

Free Port in Victoria Dangerous, Says Mayor

Having a free port in Victoria, Mayor Percy Scurrell contended yesterday, would be "a dangerous situation."

Former mayor Claude L. Harrison suggested Thursday that Victoria should assume its status as a free port as proclaimed by Governor Sir James Douglas 100 years ago. Doing so, he said, would place Victoria well on the way to becoming a major world seaport.

But Mayor Scurrell saw a danger to city taxpayers in the suggestion.

"All the stores along Government Street live from the tourist business," he said. "They occupy premises which would be difficult to rent if we had free port facilities. That could affect assessments, and assessments affect tax revenue."

His understanding of free port facilities, he said, wouldn't be able to buy duty-free goods, and tourists wouldn't shop in Victoria stores if they could buy duty-free goods at the wharf on departing.

"You can see what it would do to the stores and property values," he said.

Reeve, Mayor Against

Dukowski Idea Meets Rebuff

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt yesterday disagreed with the recent suggestion of Arena manager Joe Dukowski that the best way of providing more skating facilities in Greater Victoria would be to expand Memorial Arena.

And Mayor Percy Scurrell sympathized with Esquimalt's point of view.

Esquimalt is looking into the possibility of building a rink of its own—a fact which Mr. Dukowski recently described as encouraging, although he suggested that another ice sheet at the Arena would be the most good for the least money.

"He's not taking into account the large personnel of the services," Reeve Wurtele said yesterday. "They would much rather have a rink within half a mile. Greater Victoria would be better served by a rink where we propose it."

Mayor Scurrell said another ice surface at the Arena "certainly would be desirable. It would be most economical."

But, he said, "I can understand Esquimalt, for instance, would not want to contribute. An Esquimalt rink would be more convenient for the navy, and would be a source of pride for the municipality."

Wicks Hears Officials

Explain Wage Boost Board to Be Asked

Open Prison 'Good'

The minimum security prison at William Head has been pronounced a success by officials of the federal justice department.

Results of a study carried out by the penitentiary branch indicate that "for the majority of Canada's federal prison population, armed guards may become a thing of the past" if the experiment continues to be successful.

William Head "camp" is one of the two prisons without bars established just over a year ago. The other is Valleyfield Camp located near Montreal.

The report released this week said the camps are providing a ready solution to the problem of overcrowded penitentiaries. More camps are in the planning stage.

The report said: "Minimum security camps have an obvious economic advantage . . . being cheaper to construct and operate. But it must be stressed the advantages don't lie solely in economics."

"The camps can be regarded as a type of bridge between the larger, stricter confinement in penitentiaries . . . and the responsibilities of normal life . . ."

William Head, the report said, has a "good record" of successfully rehabilitated inmates since it was established in January, 1959. Officials gave no figures.

Among projects completed by the inmates is construction of a sports field at William Head.

London Bus Coming?

A city businessman yesterday said he is considering purchasing a red, double-decker bus from London, England, to operate as tourist attraction and sightseeing bus in Victoria.

Frank Bedry, proprietor of Pandora Apartments Hotel, 717 Pandora, said he is currently negotiating with a bus firm in London and hopes to reach an agreement in the near future.

He may have it shipped to a port in eastern Canada, decorated it with posters about Victoria and have it driven here via the Trans-Canada Highway to promote the tourist industry, he said.

Woodpecker Killers Armed with Permit

It's a good thing the Oak Bay police have a special woodpecker-shooting permit.

If they hadn't, they could lose a car, a gun and some cash.

They shot a woodpecker Thursday on Henderson. And examination of the Migratory Birds Protection Act yesterday disclosed that woodpeckers come under its wing: if anyone kills one without a Labor Minister Lyle Wicks will reconvene a conciliation board to obtain clarification of its majority award of pay increases to city policemen and firemen, he said yesterday, but he has no power to order new hearings.

Greater Victoria municipal leaders met Mr. Wicks to ask for clarification of the award to protest against its size—11 per cent—and to argue that a conciliation board should not perform the duties of an arbitration board, as it is required to do in the case of policemen's and firemen's wage disputes.

NORMAL ROLE
Normal role of a conciliation board is to bring the parties to a wage dispute together and seek a solution acceptable to both of them. But in the case of police and firemen, the conciliation board becomes in fact an arbitration board, weighing the arguments of both sides and then bringing down a binding award.

The Greater Victoria delegation sought clarification because the award calls for a $3-a-month increase for city policemen to bring them up to the wage levels of the firemen, and then an 11-per-cent increase for both forces, although policemen in some categories already receive higher pay than their counterparts in the fire department.

CORDIAL RECEPTION
"We had a cordial reception from the minister," Mayor Percy Scurrell said later. "We came away with the impression that he was sympathetic with our arguments."

The Greater Victoria municipalities will recommend to the Union of B.C. Municipalities that it seek "definite improvements" in the covering legislation, he said.

DIFFERENT MATTER
"The minister gave us a very sympathetic hearing," said Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich, "but what he could do was a different matter. He could only reconstitute the board for clarification of its award."

On improvements in the legislation, Reeve Chatterton said, "We have a different matter."

Rock Garden Show

Have You Seen Red Trillium?

Ever seen a red trillium? Or a 100-year-old tree that stands less than 12 inches high? Or, maybe, an orchid which flourishes in the cold country along the B.C.-Yukon border?

They are just three of the old and unusual plants on display in the lower hall of the Crystal Garden in the annual exhibition of the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society, which opened yesterday and closes tonight.

A spokesman for the 24-year-old society said last night the show is the biggest yet presented and entries, generally, are better than ever.

Top prize for amateur gardeners, the Dr. C. T. Hilton cup, awarded the highest aggregate of points, was won by Mrs. H. Hamill. Other prize winners: Outstanding plant suitable for a rock garden, E. H. Lohbrunner; rarest plant in the show, Mrs. J. Hibberson; outstanding entries in the children's section, Pam Harrison and Wendy Martin; outstanding rhododendron, Mr. Lohbrunner; highest aggregate in the novice section, Mrs. K. Alexander.

No Thought Of Dogs For Police

Mayor Percy Scurrell yesterday brushed aside a suggestion that use of trained dogs might enable the city police force to be reduced to some degree.

"That's not been discussed by the police commission," he said. "It has never come up."

Ignores Dog

Spunky Ferret Right at Home

By JACK FRY

A young ferret walked out of the woods this week and went right past a barking hound pup into the kitchen of an Esquimalt home.

The seven-member family of Donald E. Shaw, 1191 Lockley Road, didn't recognize it as a ferret and telephoned Esquimalt police to report that "some kind of animal has just walked into the house."

Police attended and the little ferret eventually was taken away by the SPCA, but not before it had eaten some bread from the hand of three-year-old Teresa Shaw and permitted—Mrs. 14-year-old sister Frances to hold it up for a photographer.

Mrs. Marjorie Shaw said: "I was looking out the kitchen window when I saw this thing walk out of the woods and up the drive past our barking dog."

"I opened the kitchen door and it walked right in. Teresa fed it bread. My husband put some dog food on a pan and the animal carried it through a hole in the base of the oil stove. It came back out, got an old sock and carried it back under the stove."

Three sons, John, 19; Donald, 18, and Larry, 16, also watched the animal's antics. But the ferret didn't seem the least bit perturbed by the family.

The SPCA are still caring for the animal.

Probe Set Tuesday In Fatality

Inquest into Victoria's first traffic fatality of 1960 has been set for Tuesday at 10 a.m. at Sands' funeral home.

Joseph Henry Walsh, 64, was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital, following a traffic accident at Douglas and Cormorant Thursday evening.

Defence Exercise

Nanaimo to Be B.C.'s Capital

ARNOLD VAN KLAVEREN

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black and some 100 key civil servants from the legislative buildings will set up a provisional B.C. capital in Nanaimo May 3.

It will operate as part of Tootin, a one-day civil defence exercise to test national survival, including the measures for continuity of government in an emergency across Canada.

About 25 federal officials and 50 army personnel will go from Vancouver to Nanaimo by crash boat to take part in the exercise, one of the most ambitious ever to be held.

Federal officials will come from defence production, agriculture, health and welfare, trade and commerce, dominion bureau of statistics, post office, RCMP, Unemployment Insurance Commission and finance departments.

Date of the exercise has been set, but the actual time will be a surprise and the alert will see a test of the new fan-out warning system which will see the B.C. Telephone Company alert some 118 communities in B.C.

COMOX — A group of 20 graduate nurses from the Greater Victoria area landed here by Dakota from Patricia Bay Airport on Thursday for a one-day tour of Station Comox. Conducting the tour was assistant public relations officer, Flying Officer T. G. Fielding, who welcomed them on behalf of the Commanding Officer, Group Captain R. F. Miller, CD.

After a tour through the station hospital conducted by the senior Medical Officer, Flight Lieutenant James Garrity, and a short address by Nursing Sister Compton on the role of nurses in the RCAF, the visitors were shown the women personnel officers' quarters and were then taken to lunch in the newly-completed Officers' Mess.

REALISTIC
After lunch they proceeded to the airfield control tower to observe a simulated emergency crash drill. These drills, which are staged at regular intervals to train medical and fire fighter rescue personnel, consist of a manned jet aircraft being placed in an approximate crash position with a gasoline-fed fire lit nearby.

The crash alarm sounding simultaneously in the fire hall and the hospital is the signal for the rescue teams to go into action. No effort is spared to simulate the realism of these exercises. The firemen arrive on the scene (closely followed by the ambulance), the fire is extinguished and the aircraft is "rescued" from the aircraft, placed in the ambulance and rushed to the hospital where emergency reception arrangements have been made. The visitors were impressed with the high state of training observed and the key role of nursing personnel involved was emphasized.

RETURN FLIGHT

The next hour was spent touring the facilities and aircraft of both 407 Maritime Air Patrol and 409 All Weather (CF-100) Interceptor Squadrons. At 3 o'clock they returned to the Officers' Mess where Flying Officer Gail Carson, station services officer, and Flying Officer Gladys Carlson, food services officer, presided at tea. At 4 o'clock they once again boarded their aircraft and returned to Victoria.

Printed Wool Leads Fashion

LONDON—Paris fashion designers have always been inspired by the rule that fabrics make the fashion, and British designers now show a strong tendency to work the same way. British tweeds, always famous at home and abroad, are in higher favor this season than ever before, and in greater variety. But printed wool is new, and is the real newsmaker. It is gay and adaptable.

British printed wool first hit the fashion headlines when a famous milliner used the fabric to copy the Queen's coalmine hat. It has since jumped high as a fashion fabric.

WOOL LININGS

Printed wool caused a fashion sensation when it was first used as a lining for a coat, but now British, French and Italian designers are all using it. A big lift can be given to an old, but still good suit by using a gay, printed wool lining for the jacket, plus a matching blouse.

MEN LIKE PRINTS

Designers of men's clothes have also plumped for British printed wool fabrics. Men like the dark colored Paisley designs for dressing gowns, which are warm but not heavy, and for cool sports shirts, which have become very much the thing. They are usually made in cloth weighing from 2 to 4 ounces.

A survey of opinion among British men's wear manufacturers on coming trends in cloth in Canada, does not reveal startling changes, but interesting features are expected to highlight the spring market in Canada.

Materials: Worsteds still out-sell woollens by a very large majority and the demand is still for clear-cut worsteds rather than milled finishes, although there is a steady demand for semi-milled finishes.

Fabric Designs: The Canadian market has a tendency to go all out for the fabric design that is strongly promoted in any given season. For the last two years stripes have had a strong appeal. They seem to be less popular now.

CHECKS ARE IN

The main emphasis is on checks, both large and small. They will take over during 1960. The demand for plain cloth has not diminished, however. There is also some demand for hound's tooth patterns.

The baby's maternal grandparents are Mrs. Martin Mallett and the late Mr. Mallett, and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Middleton. A buffet supper will be served at the home of the baby's parents on Frechette Street following the ceremony.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going steady with Rick for eight months. For my birthday he gave me a $3 bracelet. For his birthday I gave him a billfold which cost $3.50 and I spent an extra $2 to put my picture in it.

For Christmas he gave me a framed portrait of himself which he said cost $6. (I think it was less). I gave him a pair of gloves which cost $7.

On Valentine's Day he gave me a box of candy which I found out sold for $2. I was very disappointed as I bought him a $5 key chain.

After thinking it over it seems that I must like him more than he likes me. Do you agree? Please help me see things clearly.—CORA.

Dear Cora: How do you expect to see anything with those dollar signs on your eyeballs? Do you have a bookkeeper or do you do all this yourself?

It's difficult to tell what HE thinks, but it's easy to figure out what's important to you. Nothing is so unappealing as a girl who is hoping her Prince in shining armor will drive up in a Brink's money wagon—and I do mean YOU.

Tell Him in English

Dear Ann: A widower nearly 60 has been attentive to me for over a year. I care a great deal for him.

He hasn't told me so himself but I've heard from others that he'd like to marry me but his children are against it. They don't object to me as a person, they just don't want me to come into any of their father's estate if he should die before I do.

I have a nice income of my own and don't need this man's money. I'd be perfectly willing to sign a pre-marital agreement which would leave everything to his children. All I want is his love and companionship.

How can I tell him so without appearing to be rushing him into marriage?—PRE-DICAMENT.

Dear Predicament: Unless you speak another language fluently, tell him in English. If he's interested in your company on a dating basis only, you'll find out promptly. You can then decide whether or not you want to continue. In my opinion you have nothing to lose and much to gain.

Never Says Thanks

Dear Ann: I can't be objective about this so my wife suggested I write to you.

My older sister is unpleasant and disagreeable. She has very few friends and is on bad terms with all the relatives.

For the past several years my wife and I have made it a practice to call on her Christmas Day and bring gifts. She always has gifts for us when we arrive.

We never fail to drop her a thank-you note. She has yet to phone or drop a line saying she liked our presents. Our children feel hurt because they save out of their allowance to buy their aunt a gift they hope she will like.

Should we cross her off our list or ignore her rudeness?—BELLIFULL.

Dear Bellifull: Keep her on your list as a lesson in tolerance and understanding for your children. Let them learn to treat people nicely and to do the right thing—regardless of what others may do.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Telling and Getting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Naval Officer Maker of Island

By EILEEN LEAROYD

Scale models of Vancouver Island are popping up all over the place these days.

Some big, and some small. Late in March The Daily Colonist ran a picture of the unique landscape patio in the shape of Vancouver Island in the backyard of the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Badni, Rockland Avenue.

The patio-island was 70 feet long and about 20 feet wide. Just this week another reproduction of the Island turned up—this one a fireplace rug.

The rug is six feet long, 27 inches wide, and is in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hindle, 1415 Craddock, Esquimalt.

BLUE PACIFIC

It is a hooked affair, the island done in green, and surrounded by the blue Pacific.

The rug was hooked by Mrs. Hindle's son, a pharmacist in the RCN now stationed at HMCS Sheerwater, Dartmouth, N.S. Lt. Cmdr. Roy Hindle drew the island to scale, and filled it in with many pounds of wool in 1951 when he was at HMCS Naden.

During the war, Hindle was a bomber pilot in the RCAF.

SILK WEAVER

Lt. Cmdr. Hindle came by his handicraft talents quite honestly, for his mother, born in Lancashire, was a silk weaver when she was a girl and worked many years in a textile mill.

During the First World War she wove parachute silk, she said.

Mrs. Hindle's home is full of hobby work. She paints little pictures on glass, tools copper pictures, makes artificial flowers in ribbons, chenille and wood fibre, does needlepoint and paints in oil.

RACE ROCKS

A few years ago when Bert Thomas swam the Strait from Port Angeles, Mrs. Hindle asked Mayor Claude Harrison to give him her painting of Race Rocks. This he did.

"I think the mayor wanted to keep it himself," said Mrs. Hindle. "But I had said to Bert, 'if you swim the Straits, you can have it' and he got it." Just recently Mrs. Hindle

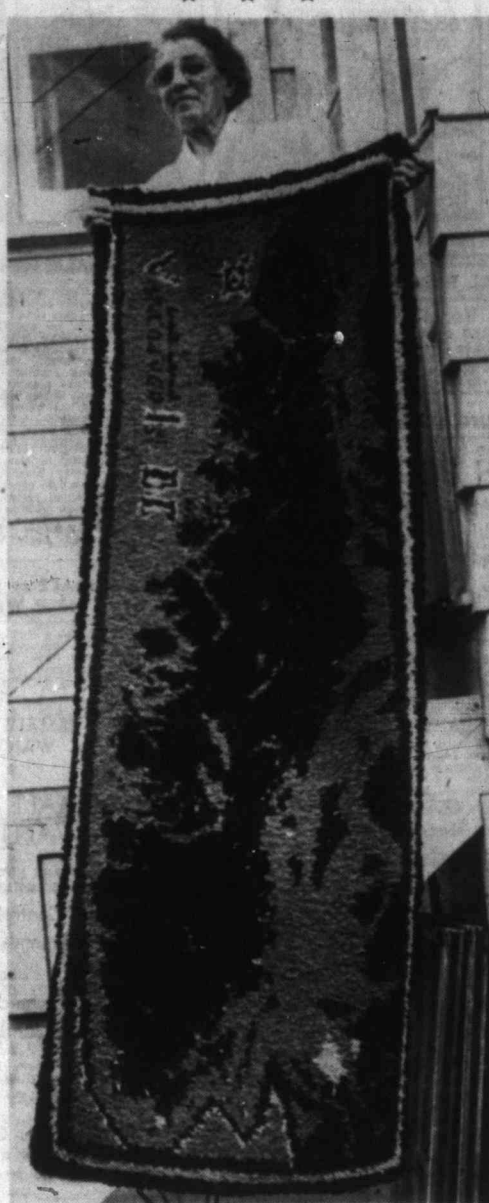

No Answer On Costs Of Court

Intermunicipal steering committee on establishment of a juvenile and family court failed to reach a conclusion this week on the probable cost to the municipalities and adjourned to seek further information.

Victoria city has asked the attorney-general to appoint a juvenile and family court judge and has expressed willingness to pay its share of costs, but Saanich has taken the stand that it must know the probable cost and the details of the court setup first.

made an afgan which she presented to the Salvation Army. They are raffling it in aid of Korean orphans.

ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. Hindle's husband, William, will shortly be marking a celebration. May 2 he will have been a professional driver for 50 years.

Now working at Dockyard, Mr. Hindle was first a transport driver for the British Army. Later, on coming to Canada, he became chauffeur to Miss Lenore Cutter of Guelph, Ontario, and held this job for 28 years.

Mrs. Hindle is proud to remember that he drove Miss Florence Johnson to her wedding.

All told, the Hindles have three children—a daughter Gladys, a son Fred in Berkeley, California, and the island-maker, Roy.

When your budget needs stretching, or unexpected company appears, make a bread stuffing and use it for making the meat or fish dish go further. Try the stuffing with baked fish, chops, roasts or meat loaf and you'll find two portions can be turned into three.

Tips for Parents

Appreciation Helps

By HELEN R. HEWSON

The leisurely tempo of the morning coffee hour had suddenly been broken by lively, staccato question and comment. But why, why is she so exasperating at home and so agreeable at school?

"Two distinct personalities; doing nothing, absolutely nothing around home unless I keep nagging, and her teacher tells me she is wonderfully cooperative at school."

Other voices were raised to cite examples of satisfactory behavior at school, less-than-satisfactory at home.

"Now what does make the difference?" these mothers asked.

Several things make the difference and some of them are:

● There is a certain formality about the school set-up; the children are divided into groups according to age and general ability; there is a planned curriculum, arranged to meet the needs and capacities of the grade level; and there is a teacher with special training for her job.

● The child is working with a group of children who are close to his own age and who share many of the same interests. They stimulate and encourage each other.

● The school is arranged for the child, to arouse interest in the task of learning and to encourage effort and application in mastering the task.

The school is essentially a group experience, a sharing experience.

If we could introduce more of the element of sharing into the home situation perhaps we could overcome some of this unco-operative behavior that baffles and annoys parents.

We can try to:

● Plan with the child, talk over the chores that he can carry out during the week, including his homework, but leave him some free time.

● Have him prepare a timetable and post it in a prominent spot over his desk and on the family bulletin board.

● Add some of the spice of variety to the daily routine; let the children prepare simple desserts, try cake and cookie mixes.

The older children can do some of the household shopping and be allowed to choose a few items themselves.

● Let us not forget that a word of appreciation, will work wonders in keeping their interest alive.

Frank Gilbert Roe

Victoria Writer Royal Fellow

A noted writer and authority on Canada's early western frontier, Frank Gilbert Roe, 2547 Killarney, in Saanich, was one of 28 Canadians recently elected Fellows of the Royal Society of Canada.

The elections bring to 510 the membership in the learned society, founded in 1882 by Governor-General the Marquess of Lorne.

Mr. Roe, 81, a retired CNR locomotive engineer and author of two books and about 30 papers relating to Indians, buffalo and the early west, expects to publish another book in the near future on the subject of life from an Indian's point of view.

His hobbies also include gardening and swimming when the weather is favorable.

The self-taught student was born in Sheffield, Yorkshire, England, and left school at an early age to come to Canada with his parents. His first Canadian home was a sod shack on the Prairies, which he helped to build with his own hands.

He worked his way from a hand on the "extra gang" to locomotive engineer with the CNR. He retired from the railroad in 1943 and has lived in Victoria for the past 15 years.

Kemp Rites Set

Funeral services for Frederick William Kemp, one of the two men credited with discovering Victoria's famous Caddy, the sea serpent, will be held from Haywards' funeral home Tuesday at 11 a.m.

Well-known throughout Victoria as a seafarer and model ship maker, Mr. Kemp died Thursday in Veterans' Hospital at the age of 78. He is survived by his son, Jack, 1975 Lee Avenue, and four sisters and one brother in England.

Descendant of an old naval family, Mr. Kemp went to sea at the age of 13, and for many years brought immigrants from Europe to the United States. He came to B.C. in 1910, working in the Queen Charlotte Islands, went to war in 1914.

Suicide Rate Tops TB Toll

OTTAWA (UPI)—An average of 1,000 Canadians have taken their own lives each year over the past decade, the bureau of statistics said yesterday. The figure was higher than the deaths caused by tuberculosis and almost twice as large as the death toll from fires.

The highest suicide rate was in British Columbia and in Newfoundland.

B.C. May Send Free Food to World's Hungry

A plan for free distribution of British Columbia food products to the underprivileged nations of the world was announced yesterday by Premier Bennett.

The premier told a press conference the government is prepared to spend "many hundreds of thousands of dollars" on the program "over a period of time."

At the same time Mr. Bennett released a letter he sent to External Affairs Minister Green stating that B.C. will "welcome its fair share" of the close to 100 tuberculous refugee families brought to Canada as part of the world refugee year program.

This would mean about eight of the families could come to this province.

In his letter the premier at the same time reiterated the need for a larger Canadian refugee program and the need for a federal-provincial conference to study the distribution of surplus Canadian food to starvation areas of the world.

Outlining the provincial food distribution plan, Mr. Bennett said a cabinet committee will be set up immediately under the chairmanship of health minister Martin to work out the details and extent of the plan.

Welfare Minister Black also would be a member. Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside, former United Nations technical assistance chief, would be asked to serve.

Dr. Keenleyside now is chairman of the B.C. power commission.

The likely vehicle for distribution of the B.C. food would be the UN international children's emergency fund.

Mr. Bennett said that officials of UNICEF had indicated

in "exploratory talks" already held that there is still a most urgent need for powdered milk and canned fish "in many parts of the world."

"These products certainly can be provided by British Columbia and indeed by the rest of Canada."

Packers Get Surplus Pork For Resale

WINNIPEG (CP)—The federal government is planning to turn back more than 90,000,000 pounds of surplus pork to packing houses for sale to Canadian consumers, it was reported here.

Civil Rights Passed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed a civil rights bill Friday night after eight weeks of battling.

The measure, aimed primarily at enforcing Negro voting rights in the southern United States, now goes back to the House of Representatives for action on Senate amendments.

Congressional leaders were hopeful that the House, which passed substantially the same bill by a 311-to-109 vote March 24, would accept the Senate changes.

The vote was 71 to 18. The 18 opposed were the southern senators who fought the bill every step of the way.

Senate passage of the bill came over bitter opposition of southern members, who lost in a last-ditch effort to send it back to the judiciary committee for more hearings. The final vote capped a struggle that began Feb. 15 and was featured by more than a week of record-smashing around-the-clock sessions.

Southern senators denounced the bill as an unconstitutional invasion of states' rights.

Paper's Unions Beg to Differ

HAVANA (UPI)—The independent newspaper Diario de la Marina published an editorial cartoon yesterday depicting a man being rocketed to the moon with a second man exclaiming: "I envy him—going to another world."

Beneath the cartoon the newspaper's union workers added the foot-note: "This work-centre repudiates this cartoon and its alleged joke as an insidious attack against the Cuban revolution."

'Going on a Drunk'

$30,000 Stolen On an Impulse

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN

CHICAGO (UPI)—A trusted Brinks armored car driver jotted down a note saying, "I'm going out on a good drunk" and wandered off yesterday with a money bag containing $30,000.

Brinks' detectives found him two hours later, sitting quietly in a tavern near his home.

The driver, William Johnson, 37, was still sober—more or less.

He still had the $30,000, too.

minus $60 he had spent on a brand new wardrobe.

Some of the money had also been invested in buying four rounds of drinks for everyone in the saloon.

"I'm a sick man," Johnson said. "I feel sick all over."

His wife, Estelle, sobbed. "It's the first wrong thing he's done in 27 years. My husband never spent money for a good time."

Not so, Johnson told police. He admitted he had been out on the town Thursday night, and his wife had locked him out of their apartment. He hadn't felt quite up to par this morning, he added.

27 YEARS

Johnson had worked for the money-moving firm for 27 years on the slightest blot on his record. He had carried millions of dollars without losing or taking a penny. Even when he yielded to irresistible impulse yesterday, Johnson wasn't greedy. He left $250,000 behind.

Brinks officials were flabbergasted. Not even the great Boston Brinks robbery quite compared with it, they said. "It's unprecedented," said

Chicago Brinks manager Parker Jones. "In my knowledge, nothing like it has ever occurred before."

SICK MAN

After Johnson had been found and the money counted, Jones said with a touch of relief, "He's a very sick man. He has had problems."

Johnson helped himself while a guard and messenger were delivering cash in Chicago's Loop.

Like the trustworthy employee he had always been, Johnson locked the armored car before he left it. He left the note and his keys, uniform cap, company coat and badge, revolver, holster, belt and extra ammunition.

Jones said, "We knew where he was likely to go, so our supervisor went out there, and there he was."

The Brinks official was ready to forgive and forget. "If he is a sick man, we want to have him taken care of," Jones said. "We're thankful no more money was missing than there was."

His wondering wife said Johnson made $3,500 a year and had no need of money.

Shabby White Woman Gives Negroes Money

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—A shabby-dressed white woman Friday distributed 200 £1 bills—each worth $2.67—to Africans.

"Now I will sleep well to night," she said.

The woman, who spoke with a Dutch accent, appeared in a local office where Africans are issued with new identity passbooks. A new book cost £1.

Thousands of Africans burned their passbooks in protest. Officials said Africans would have to buy new books—a bitter blow.

As astounded officials watched, the woman called for Africans who had burned their books. Dozens stepped forward. She ran out of bills but returned later with another 100.

Miss Victoria, 1960, to be chosen during the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce exhibition, May 16 to 21, will be selected from among these 10 girls—front row, from left, Lynne Alexander, Irene Burnett, Candy Harrington, Elaine Hiscock, and

Cabinet To Move

Premier Bennett said yesterday out-of-town cabinet meetings will start in May with the first ones at the North Shore in Vancouver and at Port Alberni.

He said the cabinet hopes to hold a meeting at Ganges on Salt Spring Island later in the summer.

The premier will leave Thursday to spend Easter weekend at Kelowna.

Premier Bennett Regrets

Premier Bennett said yesterday he regrets he is unable to attend the May 6 wedding of Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones, because he is still under doctor's orders to take things easy.

The premier was asked earlier if he would be able to attend.

Yesterday the premier noted that the big pictures of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip which hang in his office were taken by Mr. Armstrong-Jones.

Probe Set In Fatality

Inquest into Victoria's first traffic fatality of 1960 has been set for Tuesday at 10 a.m. at Sagg's funeral home.

Joseph Henry Walsh, 64, was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital, following a traffic accident at Douglas and Cormorant Thursday evening.

Free Port in Victoria Dangerous, Says Mayor

Having a free port in Victoria, Mayor Percy Scurreh contended yesterday, would be "a dangerous situation."

Former mayor Claude L. Harrison suggested Thursday that Victoria should assume its status as a free port as proclaimed by Governor Sir James Douglas 100 years ago. Doing so, he said, would place Victoria well on the way to becoming a major world seaport.

But Mayor Scurreh saw a danger to city taxpayers in the suggestion.

"All the stores along Government Street live from the tourist business," he said. "They occupy premises which would be difficult to rent if we had free port facilities. That could affect assessments, and assessments affect tax revenue."

His understanding of free port facilities, he said, "is that there is an enclosed area where departing foreign passengers can buy duty-free goods." Victorians, he said, wouldn't be able to buy duty-free goods, and tourists wouldn't shop in Victoria stores if they could buy duty-free goods at the wharf on departing.

"You can see what it would do to the stores and property values," he said.

Reeve, Mayor Against

Dukowski Idea Meets Rebuff

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt yesterday disagreed with the recent suggestion of Arena manager Joe Dukowski that the best way of providing more skating facilities in Greater Victoria would be to expand Memorial Arena.

And Mayor Percy Scurreh sympathized with Esquimalt's point of view.

Esquimalt is looking into the possibility of building a rink of its own—a fact which Mr. Dukowski recently described as encouraging, although he suggested that another ice sheet at the Arena would do the most good for the least money.

"He's not taking into account the large personnel of the services," Reeve Wurtele said yesterday. "They would much rather have a rink within half a mile. Greater Victoria would be better served by a rink where we propose it."

Mayor Scurreh said another ice surface at the Arena "certainly would be desirable. It would be most economical."

But, he said, "I can understand Esquimalt, for instance, would not want to contribute. An Esquimalt rink would be more convenient for the navy, and would be a source of pride for the municipality."

London Bus Coming?

A city businessman yesterday said he is considering purchasing a red, double-decker bus from London, England, to operate as a tourist attraction and sightseeing bus in Victoria.

Frank Bedry, proprietor of Pandora Apartments Hotel, 717 Pandora, said he is currently negotiating with a bus firm in London and hopes to reach an agreement in the near future.

He may have it shipped to a port in eastern Canada, decorate it with posters about Victoria and have it driven here via the Trans-Canada Highway to promote the tourist industry, he said.

Woodpecker Killers Armed with Permit

It's a good thing the Oak Bay police have a special woodpecker-shooting permit.

If they hadn't, they could lose a car, a gun and some cash.

They shot a woodpecker Thursday on Henderson. Examination of the Migratory Birds Protection Act yesterday disclosed that woodpeckers come under its wing; if anyone kills one without a

Explain Wage Boost Board to Be Asked

Open Prison 'Good'

The minimum security prison at William Head has been pronounced a success by officials of the federal justice department.

Results of a study carried out by the penitentiary branch indicate that "for the majority of Canada's federal prison population, armed guards may become a thing of the past" if the experiment continues to be successful.

William Head "camp" is one of the two prisons without bars established just over a year ago. The other is Valleyfield Camp located near Montreal.

The report released this week said the camps are providing a ready solution to the problem of overcrowded penitentiaries. More camps are in the planning stage.

The report said: "Minimum security camps have an obvious economic advantage... being cheaper to construct and operate. But it must be stressed the advantages don't lie solely in economics."

"The camps can be regarded as a type of bridge between the larger, stricter confinement in penitentiaries... and the responsibilities of normal life..."

William Head, the report said, has a "good record" of successfully rehabilitated inmates since it was established in January, 1959. Officials gave no figures.

Among projects completed by the inmates is construction of a sports field at William Head.

Rock Garden Show

Have You Seen Red Trillium?

Ever seen a red trillium? Or a 100-year-old tree that stands less than 12 inches high? Or maybe an orchid which flourishes in the cold country along the B.C.-Yukon border?

They are just three of the odd and unusual plants on display in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden in the annual exhibition of the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society, which opened yesterday and closes tonight.

A spokesman for the 24-year-old society said last night the show is the biggest yet presented and entries, generally, are better than ever.

Top prize for amateur gardeners, the Dr. C. T. Hilton cup, awarded the amateur winning the highest aggregate of points, was won by Mrs. H. Hamill. Other prize winners:

Outstanding plant suitable for a rock garden, E. H. Lohbrunner; rarest plant in the show, Mrs. J. Hibberson; outstanding entries in the children's section, Pam Harrison and Wendy Martin; outstanding rhododendron, Mr. Lohbrunner; highest aggregate in the novice section, Mrs. K. Alexander.

Best native plant, Vern Ahier; best primula polyanthus, C. A. Pederson; best plant suitable for the woodland garden, Mrs. Alexander; highest aggregate in open section, Mr. Lohbrunner.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks will reconvene a conciliation board to obtain clarification of its majority award of pay increases to city policemen and firemen, he said yesterday, but he has no power to order new hearings.

Greater Victoria municipal leaders met Mr. Wicks to ask for clarification of the award, per cent—and to argue that a conciliation board should not perform the duties of an arbitration board, as it is required to do in the case of policemen's and firemen's wage disputes.

Normal role of a conciliation board is to bring the parties to a wage dispute together and seek a solution acceptable to both of them. But in the case of police and firemen, the conciliation board becomes in fact an arbitration board, weighing the arguments of both sides and then bringing down a binding award.

The Greater Victoria delegation sought clarification because the award calls for a $3-a-month increase for city policemen to bring them up to the wage levels of the firemen, and then an 11-per-cent increase for both forces, although policemen in some categories already receive higher pay than their counterparts in the fire department.

CORDIAL RECEPTION

"We had a cordial reception from the minister," Mayor Percy Scurreh said later. "We came away with the impression that he was sympathetic with our arguments."

The Greater Victoria municipalities will recommend to the Union of B.C. Municipalities that it seek "definite improvements" in the covering legislation, he said.

"The minister gave us a very sympathetic hearing," said Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich, "but what he could do was a different matter. He could only reconstitute the board for clarification of its award."

On improvements in the legislation, Reeve Chatterton said, Mr. Wicks had indicated he would like to see a resolution from the UBCM, and "we'll have to do something."

Mayor Percy Scurreh yesterday brushed aside a suggestion that use of trained dogs might enable the city police force to be reduced to some degree.

"That's not been discussed by the police commission," he said. "It has never come up."

Ignores Dog

A young ferret walked out of the woods this week and went right past a barking hound pup into the kitchen of an Esquimalt home.

The seven-member family of Donald E. Shaw, 1191 Lockley Road, didn't recognize it as a ferret and telephoned Esquimalt police to report that "some kind of animal has just walked into the house."

Police attended and the little ferret eventually was taken away by the SPCA, but not before it had eaten some bread from the hand of three-year-old Teresa Shaw and permitted her 14-year-old sister Frances to hold it up for a photographer.

Mrs. Marjorie Shaw said: "I was looking out the kitchen window when I saw this thing walk out of the woods and up the drive past our barking dog."

"I opened the kitchen door and it walked right in. Teresa fed it bread. My husband put some dog food on a pan and the animal carried it through a hole in the base of the oil

Neighbors Spring to Defence

Storm Rages Over Oak Bay Dogs

Controversy was still raging in Oak Bay last night over four Alsatian dogs who killed a small dachshund in a nearby yard early Wednesday.

Some neighbors of the owners of the dogs, Cmdr. and Mrs. D. L. Macknight, 1008 Deal Street, sprang to their defence. The Macknights themselves said they would prefer to let the whole matter die down, but were unable to yesterday in the face of several anonymous telephone calls telling them to get rid of the dogs.

The Alsatis escaped from the yard Wednesday and killed a dachshund owned by Peter Henderson, 1059 Deal Street. Mr. Henderson immediately went to the police, demanding that the dogs be taken to the country "before they begin attacking small children."

Chief Robert Smith of Oak Bay Police said the matter will be brought up at the meeting of the police commission Wednesday. He admitted that "there is always a possibility that a dog which has tasted blood will attack again."

However, some neighbors last night termed this "ridiculous" and had nothing but praise for the four large dogs and for the training and care they have received from the Macknights.

"Those dogs are wonderfully cared for and trained," said Mrs. N. E. Impett, 1015 Deal, who lives across the street from the Macknights and whose 10-year-old son, Peter, walks the dogs on a leash every day.

"This thing has been blown up out of all proportion. People are under the impression we have a pack of dogs running loose out here and it's wrong. These are show dogs, always kept either indoors or in the yard. They got out once and killed a small dog which is never kept close to home and which has had a habit of standing next to the fence and barking at the Alsatis unceasingly."

William Hooson, 1039 Deal Street, backed him up. "This is an unwarranted attack," he said. "It was unfortunate that the dog was killed, but I refuse to believe those dogs would attack anyone. To hint that they might attack children is ridiculous. I've got two small children myself and I would never hesitate to put them in a yard to play with those dogs."

Mr. Hooson himself owns a German pointer, which he keeps at his home.

"Mr. Henderson's dog was never kept on a leash and used to natter on bark at other dogs, provoking attack," he concluded.

Mrs. Impett was more concerned over the "shameful" treatment received by Mrs. Macknight, whose husband was away from home at the time of the incident and did not hear of it until last night.

"Mrs. Macknight was more disturbed about it than anyone, and even made inquiries about getting a new dog for them," Mrs. Impett said. "Now she is being bothered by anonymous phone calls, and none of this was her fault."

One caller asked Mrs. Macknight if she was an English woman, and when told she did not understand, yelled "Get your bloody dogs out of Oak Bay."

Cmdr. Macknight, obviously upset over the incident, said last night he just wanted it to die down as soon as possible.

"We are extremely sorry the dog was killed, of course," he said. "But these are not wild dogs. They are well-trained and well looked after, and wouldn't hurt anyone."

Struck by Truck, Indian Boy Dies

DUNCAN—An inquest was adjourned indefinitely last night after a six-man jury was sworn in and then viewed the body of Calvin Gibson, 14, a Westholme Indian, who died of injuries received when he was struck by a truck.

The body was released for burial after mass in Westholme Catholic Church starting at 10 a.m.

The youth was struck down and run over by a light truck on the old Island highways near the reserve after he started to cross from behind a parked truck. Relative said Calvin was returning home with companions from a soccer practice at Westholme Indian School about 7.30 p.m. Thursday. Police said the driver of the truck was Ted de Wit, of Chemainus.

He died shortly before midnight in Chemainus General Hospital after doctors tried for almost four hours to save him. One of the truck's wheels is believed to have gone over his chest. His right leg and arm were fractured.

Born at Cowichan Bay, he attended St. Catherine's Indian School here. Burial will be in Westholme Indian Cemetery.

B.C. May Send Free Food to World's Hungry

A plan for free distribution of British Columbia food products to the underprivileged nations of the world was announced yesterday by Premier Bennett.

The premier told a press conference the government is prepared to spend "many hundreds of thousands of dollars" on the program "over a period of time."

At the same time Mr. Bennett released a letter he sent to External Affairs Minister Green stating that B.C. will "welcome its fair share" of the close to 100 tuberculous refugee families brought to Canada as part of the world refugee year program. This would mean about eight of the families could come to this province.

In his letter the premier at the same time reiterated the need for a larger Canadian refugee program and the need for a federal-provincial conference to study the distribution of surplus Canadian food to starvation areas of the world.

Outlining the provincial food distribution plan, Mr. Bennett said a cabinet committee will be set up immediately under the chairmanship of Health Minister Martin to work out the details and extent of the plan.

Welfare Minister Black also would be a member. Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside, former United Nations technical assistance chief, would be asked to serve.

Dr. Keenleyside now is chairman of the B.C. Power Commission.

The likely vehicle for distribution of the B.C. food would be the UN international children's emergency fund.

Mr. Bennett said that officials of UNICEF had indicated

in "exploratory talks" already held that there is still a most urgent need for powdered milk and canned fish "in many parts of the world."

These products certainly can be provided by British Columbia and indeed by the rest of Canada.

Double Profit?

Packers Get Surplus Pork For Resale

WINNIPEG (CP)—The federal government is planning to turn back more than 90,000,000 pounds of surplus pork to packing houses for sale to Canadian consumers, it was reported here.

The pork was bought from the packers by the government as part of its price support program.

AFTER EASTER

Announcement of the government plan is not expected until after Easter so the normally heavy demand for hams and other pork products at that time will not be affected.

A packing house official was said to have confirmed that negotiations for the deal are under way.

REASONABLE

"The surplus pork will go back to the trade at a price which will be very reasonable for everybody," he was quoted as saying. Men in the livestock trade were reported to feel that the move would cost the government money and force pork prices down.

Agriculture department spokesmen were reported as saying that sale of the surplus would end pork canning, perhaps for two years.

The government recently offered the stored pork to charitable institutions and hospitals. It was estimated at the time there was 115,000,000 pounds of pork in storage. The government since has disposed of about 22,000,000 pounds.

30 CENTS TIN

The report says the packing industry, which has been selling canned pork for prices as low as 30 cents a tin, is expected to want to sell the surplus pork at the same prices. With nearly two years' supply on hand, the net effect would be low hog prices for that period.

Livestock men are reported to be concerned about the potential double profit available to packing houses. They say the packers received a profit when they sold the pork to the government, and they are expected to ask the government for a price low enough to allow a mark-up before the meat is sold to consumers.

Civil Rights Passed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed a civil rights bill Friday night after eight weeks of battling.

The measure, aimed primarily at enforcing Negro voting rights in the southern United States, now goes back to the House of Representatives for action on Senate amendments.

HOUSE HOPE

Congressional leaders were hopeful that the House, which passed substantially the same bill by a 311-to-109 vote March 24, would accept the Senate changes.

The vote was 71 to 18. The 18 opposed were the southern senators who fought the bill every step of the way.

BITTER FIGHT

Senate passage of the bill came over bitter opposition of southern members, who lost in a last-ditch effort to send it back to the judiciary committee for more hearings. The final vote capped a struggle that began Feb. 15 and was featured by more than a week of record-smashing around-the-clock sessions.

WILLIAM JOHNSON

ESTELLE JOHNSON

'Going on a Drunk'

$30,000 Stolen On an Impulse

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN

CHICAGO (UPI)—A trusted Brinks armored car driver jotted down a note saying, "I'm going out on a good drunk" and wandered off yesterday with a money bag containing $30,000.

Brinks' detectives found him two hours later, sitting quietly in a tavern near his home.

The driver, William Johnson, 57, was still sober—more or less.

He still had the $30,000, too

—minus $60 he had spent on a brand new wardrobe.

Some of the money had also been invested in buying four rounds of drinks for everyone in the saloon.

"I'm a sick man," Johnson said. "I feel sick all over."

His wife, Estelle, sobbed, "It's the first wrong thing he's done in 27 years. My husband never spent money for a good time."

Not so, Johnson told police. He admitted he had been out on the town Thursday night, and his wife had locked him out of their apartment. He hadn't felt quite up to par this morning, he added.

27 YEARS

Johnson had worked for the money-moving firm for 27 years without the slightest blot on his record. He had carried millions of dollars without losing or taking a penny. Even when he yielded to irresistible impulse yesterday, Johnson wasn't greedy. He left $250,000 behind.

Brinks officials were flabbergasted. Not even the great Boston Brinks robbery quite compared with it, they said. "It's unprecedented," said

Chicago Brinks manager Parker Jones. "In my knowledge, nothing like it has ever occurred before."

After Johnson had been found and the money counted, Jones said with a touch of relief, "He's a very sick man. He has had problems."

Johnson helped himself while a guard and messenger were delivering cash in Chicago's Loop.

DID RIGHT

Like the trustworthy employee he had always been, Johnson locked the armored car before he left it. He left the note and his keys, uniform cap, company coat and badge, revolver, holster, belt and extra ammunition.

Jones said, "We knew where he was likely to go, so our supervisor went out there, and there he was."

The Brinks official was ready to forgive and forget. "If he is a sick man, we want to have him taken care of," Jones said. "We're thankful no more money was missing than there was."

His wondering wife said Johnson made $3,500 a year and had no need of money.

11-Day Strike Over

CAPETOWN (UPI)—Tens of thousands of Africans ended their 11-day stay-at-home strike yesterday and began streaming back to their jobs.

At the same time, the government ordered a ban on the two native organizations that spawned the strike—the Pan-Africanist Congress and the African National Congress. The ban will last a year.

STERN CONTROLS

The government indicated it would not slacken stern emergency controls established to combat the strike and outbreaks of violence that erupted March 21.

To make sure it meant business, it ordered raids before dawn on African and pro-

African groups in Cape Town, Johannesburg, Durban, Port Elizabeth and Witwatersrand. About 150 persons "of all races," some reputedly communists, were arrested it was said.

Later in the day, Johannesburg police made a lightning raid in daylight, rounding up Africans not carrying identification pass books.

IN SEVEN DAYS

In the past, such persons were arrested and fined $28 or sent to a prison farm for two months, but yesterday they were simply loaded into trucks and brought to police stations, where they were warned to get pass books in seven days.

In another move, the government ordered the mobilization of a third reserve unit, the South African Irish Regiment.

Church Probe Sought

LONDON (AP)—The Archbishop of Capetown flew into London Friday on his way to Geneva to invite the World Council of Churches to send a fact-finding mission to South Africa.

"I did not, of course, wear a false beard," said Ven. Cecil T. Wood, "but I did not advertise the fact that I was going to see the World Council of Churches."

Shabby White Woman Gives Negroes Money

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—A shabby-dressed white woman Friday distributed 200 fl bills—each worth $2.67—to Africans.

"Now I will sleep well at night," she said.

The woman, who spoke with a Dutch accent, appeared in a local office where Africans are issued with new identity pass books. A new book cost fl.

Thousands of Africans burned their pass books in protest. Officials said Africans would have to buy new books—a bitter blow.

As astounded officials watched, the woman called for Africans who had burned their books. Dozens stepped forward. She ran out of bills but returned later with another 100.

Rebels Gunned Down

DOUALA, Cameroon (UPI)—Police killed 25 Negro rebel tribesmen when they opened fire with Tommy guns on a rampaging mob of 200 terrorists who hacked a French police officer to death, it was disclosed yesterday.

Four policemen, including the French officer, were killed and six wounded.

The clash Thursday between the French-officered police and rebel tribesmen opposed to the government was the latest in a series of bloody incidents which have erupted in Cameroon since it became independent from France on New Year's Day.

The attacking terrorists were believed to be followers of the Union of Cameroon People's Party led by the exiled Felix Moumie. The party was responsible for a wave of jungle terrorism during the years that preceded the former colony's independence.

The terrorists were armed with pistols, gasoline-filled "Molotov cocktails" and jungle choppers. They were formed into three commands when they attacked a police post on the fringe of Douala.

THEODOR OBERLANDER

... won't return

Ex-Nazi Dropped

BONN, West Germany (Reuters)—Refugee Minister Theodor Oberlander, ex-Nazi accused of wartime atrocities, prepared Friday for a suddenly-announced annual leave amid reports the government has promised he will not return to the cabinet.

A series of announcements Friday indicated that the former Hitler Brownshirt, target of war crimes charges including mass killings made from both sides of the Iron Curtain, is through.

Norway Royalty Returning Snub?

LONDON (UPI)—The Daily Sketch said yesterday Norway's royal family is "boycotting" Princess Margaret's wedding because her cousin Alexandra "spurned" the Norwegian crown prince. (See story on Page 6.)

Authorities in Oslo said it would be "extremely difficult" for any Norwegian royalty to attend the wedding May 6, because King Olaf will be attending a meeting of the Norwegian Science Society that day and Crown Prince Harald will be on manoeuvres with the army.

Chocolate heir Jeremy Fry had announced earlier that he would be unable to act as Antony Armstrong-Jones' best man at the wedding.

The Sketch quoted unidentified Norwegians in London as saying Olaf tried unsuccessfully to promote a marriage between Harald and Princess Alexandra.

Fleming Rules Out Retroactive Pay

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming told spokesmen for civil service groups Friday they have no hope of having pay increases, announced Wednesday, made retroactive to October, 1958.

The increases for some 43,500 federal employees are retroactive until April 1. Increases for another 6,500 are expected to be made public in a few days and be effective from the same date.

"No increase can possibly be made retroactive to a date earlier than April 1, 1960," Mr. Fleming said.

Poison Oil Salesmen May Die

RABAT, Morocco (UPI)—The Moroccan government is expected to demand the death penalty for 24 persons involved in selling a poisonous oil which killed or crippled 9,067 persons last October.

The trial begins Monday.
